Self - Evaluation

As an enterprising student with a global perspective, I have always been passionate about international affairs and cross - cultural communication. I have continuously expanded my horizons through Model United Nations, academic research, and various volunteer activities. I believe that communication and cooperation are the keys to solving global challenges. Therefore, when participating in international issues, I focus on seeking innovative solutions through multi - party cooperation.

I approach every task with a rigorous and open attitude. I am good at organizing and coordinating and can effectively communicate and promote work in diverse teams. The rich experience in Model United Nations has equipped me with a profound international perspective and the ability to think critically about complex issues, while my outstanding performance in language competitions has further refined my public speaking and expression skills.

Joining the Toyo University Model United Nations team will be an excellent opportunity for me to contribute my experience and enthusiasm and explore global issues together with outstanding young people from around the world. I look forward to contributing to promoting fairness and sustainable development through this platform.
